This committee is to take entire charge of the concerts, and they have already mapped out the programme from their first, which takes place on February 10. It contains Beethoven's "Overture to Coriolan" and three nocturnes by Claudo Debussy: "Nuages", "Fetes" and "Sireness," and "Le Ropes de la Sainte Famille," for tenor, female chorus and crchertra, by Hector Berlioz. Choral societies throughout the country are interesting themselves in the contests which are to take place at the coming Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, and many have already announced their determination to enter the competition. The rules governing contests have been sent out by the committee in charge. The competing choruses are to be divided into three classes. Those that have from 90 to 120 members will constitute the first grade, those numbering from 70 to 20 the second grade, and those whose membership
